

InTense!

Simply the best board game in Japan for practicing English pronouns, tenses and verbs. With InTense! your students will produce an infinite variety of statements, positive and negative, and a wide variety of questions, whilst changing pronouns as well as the form and and tense of the verb. Never hear the same sentence twice; just like real talking. "My grandmother didn't ride a bicycle, she rode a horse." Using just a board, counters, dice and 180 cards, which are color coded to make it easy to sort into regular and irregular pack and of course all cards can be used for "continuous". The guide cards help you and your students get going and then you're on your own with the freedom to choose whatever tense you can think about.

InTense! With InTense! your students will produce an infinite variety of statements, positive and negative, and a wide variety of questions, whilst changing pronouns as well as the form and and tense of the verb. Using just a board, counters, dice and 180 cards, which are color coded to make it easy to sort into regular and irregular pack and of course all cards can be used for "continuous".

How to play the game (in pairs): You will need a dice and counter for each team or pair. Players, within teams, take turns to throw a dice and move forward by the number shown, all teams can play at the same time. Pick up a card from that pile in accordance with the color of the square you land on and form a statement, positive or negative, or question using the chosen tense and pronoun, the pronoun key is on the board and the teacher can decide on the tense before starting the game. If you land on a 'fishing' square, then you throw the dice and move back the number shown and pick up the appropriate card. If you land on a three colour square, then pick up all three cards and make statements or questions in accordance with the card. If you land on a 'dice' square, then throw again. If your team reaches the finish, then continue playing using the last placed counter.

Notes: The verb cards go face down on the board. You will see that the backs are color-coded to match the board. Any verb card can be placed on the "Continuous" rectangle but only a card with an orange dot on it can go on the "Regular" orange rectangle and only a card with a green dot on it can go on the "Irregular" green rectangle. You may want to take out of the negative and question cards if you feel the game is initially too complex for your students. You can also restrict the game to certain pronouns. I use the game in conjunction with occupations for practising 'he/she' and with animal cards for practising 'it'.

The game can also involve writing sentences: Make sentences according to the dice key on the left of the board. Use the guide cards to help you if necessary. To simplify the game don't use the 'dice key'. Leave out the 'negative' and 'question' cards. Play in first person only or with 'it' using a pile of animal cards. Use occupation cards for practicing 'he' and 'she'. For a very fast game use only one counter. Up to six players can play in pairs using one board, three counters and three dice. The game ends when all teams reach the finish. Should a winner be required, then the team with the most cards and/or the team to finish first, wins.

Get a Pet and Get a Job cards can also be used with this game.
